While it is stated that the child's parents are wealthy and that a ran- pounds each. som of $200,000 has been demanded for her return to Denmark, the Jensens insist that they are in rightful tight on the deck as if they had been possession of the little girl. The case will be decided before United States Commissioner Foote Wednesday. For more than two years the Danish government has been searching for the Jensens and detectives in every large city of the United States have been looking for them. The chase ended Tuesday in Chicago, where they are located in North Halstead street. Geo. minutes the cloud passed over the ves- lice Bech, acting consul in New York for the Danish government, arrived from the east, armed with extradition papers and the correspondence between the governments.

The story told by the Danish agents is that M. Gellert, father of the child, is one of the richest men of Denmark, and makes his home upon a magnificent estate at Friderica. In 1902 he had one daughter, Elsie, who was three years old. He had a valet of the name of Jensen, and there also was in the family a young woman nurse.

Mrs. Gellert was ill and the little girl was almost entirely in the charge of the nurse. The valet and the nurse disappeared, it is said, taking the child with them.

No clew could be obtained to their whereabouts at first, but later it was found they had all landed in New York. The Danish authorities stirred up the American state department and for the last two years the search has continued without intermission.

The story as told by the Jensens is that they were prosperous trades people in Denmark. The child, they say, practically was deserted by her parents, and out of pity for the little one they volunteered to care for her. There was no adoption. The Jensens simply took Elsie, they say, with the mother's consent. Two years ago they came to America and brought the child with them. They deny that they have lived under assumed names, as the Danish officers charge, or that they have made any demands for

Baker, of the Anti-Saloon league, when asked Tuesday for his opinion of the saloon which had its formal opening Tuesday at New York, Bishop Potter presiding.

These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time. The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees Fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

Che Foo, Aug. 3.-A desperate three days' assault on the innner defenses on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed, according to advices brought by two junks which arrived here Tuesday. A Chinese who has arrived here on a separate junk confirms the Russians' statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault numbered between 5,000 and 6,000. The Japanese in their repeated assaults against the eastern forts on the hills, through barbed wire entanglements and over mines displayed fanatical bravery They were moved down by the hail of shelis and bullets and the explosion of mines under their feet. INTERESTING TREE LORE.

Man Who Knows All About Woodland Growths Gives Some Valuable Information.

"How many leaves do you think a tree has?" asked the man who had read it all up, stopping his friend in the park, relates the New York Sun. "Of course, you don't know. Some birches have 200,000, and each leaf has 100,000 mouths. I know of a 60-year-old beech that had 35,-000 leaves and a 35-year-old one that had only 3,000.

"These 35,000 leaves, dried, weighed only ten pounds and the 3,000 dried, only three-quarters of a pound. But they do tremendous work in a season. During a spring and summer, birches and lindens have been found to exhale 600 or 700 pounds of water per pound of dry leaves; the ash tree about 500; beeches. 400; maples, 400, and oaks, 250. The conifers give out about 100 pounds a tree. To stagger you still more, an acre of beech forest of, say, 500 trees, would exhale about 2,000,000 pounds.

"And the funniest part of it all to me is that the water in a tree, or the moisture, really amounts to more than half the weight of the tree, or from 55 to 60 per cent., while the wood weighs but 40 to 45 per cent. In a big forest what you don't see weighs more than what you do see. Funny, isn't it?

"As to forests and water," continued the tree man, "I learned that a partial cutting down of the Volga river valley forests had the tremendous effect of lessening so great an area of water as the Caspian sea. I figured the comparison and found that, pro rata, six feet of water would be taken off Lake Superior, eight off Lake Michigan, 18 off Lake Erie and 27 off Lake Ontario. I was staggered.

"Then I found that deforestation, as we call it, has robbed the Vistula river of 26 inches of water, the magnificent Rhine of 28 inches and the beautiful blue Danube of 55 inches. Let me hit you nearer home. The Hudson has been called a drowned river because the sea encroaches upon it. But you're drowning it more now by your deforestation and you'd better hurry up with those Adirondack lands. The salt water now, they say, goes up to Hastings.

"The Schuylkiil is less in volume than ever. So is the Mohawk and so is the Connecticut. Even the fish left the lower part of the Savannah river, but they're trying to do something with that water now.

"Another queer thing is that Christopher Columbus' son Fernando, who crossed the ocean with him, was the first man to start the question of forests causing rainfall, by his observations of the wealth of vegetation on the Island of Jamaica."

Whose Fault Is It?

We have heard numerous complaints bout the impure water at the Paris Public Schools. It is said that the pupils were compelled all last season to either drink hydrant water or do without, as the business, on Wednesday drank some cistern was in such a condition that the water from it was not fit to drink. This matter should be looked into by the proper officials and remedied before the Fall term of school is commenced, and it will no doubt prevent many cases of typhoid fever and other sickness this Fall.

We have one of the best city schools in can set tires cold as well as hot. If you the State, and extensive improvements are now being made in the building—a fine new steam heating apparatus is being put in, and when this is completed there will be nothing wanting except pure water. ### More About the Court House.

Yesterday afternoon it was discovered that a portion of the north-west wall (from the cornace up) of the court house had sprung, due to the weight of the heavy steel girders forming the roof, a furnance at Public School Building, on Seventh street, was taken suddenly ill being made. The wall is now braced, and and 5 additional steel pillars have been morning. He was moved to the Fordham ordered from the foundry to reinforce the wall. We do not know whether this is a very serious matter or not-we hope not-but it certainly is unfortunate that the building is beginning to crack at all.

The ten days given Crawford & Gibson to get a hustle on themselves expired yesterday, and no action was taken in the matter, only another meeting of the Fiscal Court called for Saturday.

In the Service of the Czar

By WALTER LAURENCE HACKETT

(Copyright, 1899, by the Short Story Publishing Com-pany. All Rights Reserved.)

HE room was dingy and but poorly lighted. Around the long table in Its center were gathered the conspirators -the men who had sworn to kill the czar. A strange looking appearance they made in the flickering candle light; some with fierce faces marked by the bitter lines of hunger and of hate; some with the enthusiastic and wrapt expression of dreamers; others with the cold impassivity of great generals. One of the last mentioned, colder, more impassive than the rest, sat at the foot of the table, facing the president. His manner showed not the slightest nervousness, not the slightest exhilaration. Yet in an hour he meant to betray the men who sat about him to the horrors of a living death, on the bleak plains of Siberia, gaining thereby the lasting favor of his imperial master: The blow that would ruin his comrades would make him.

The clock struck eight as the president rose to speak.

"Brothers," he began, "brothers, we have all sworn the same sacred vows, we have all stood the severe tests of our order-we can all be trusted. It becomes my duty, therefore, to speak out. Our days of plotting are passed, the time for action has come. At last we shall strike a decisive blow for liberty."

He paused, but no one spoke. There was not a sound in the room. Some reathed a little more quickly—that was all. Pointing to a powder kcg in a corner, the president continued:

'Our materials are at hand; our opportunity, also. The czar visits Krasnoe-

Selo Thursday-"

The noise of a scuffle in the hall outside the door interrupted him. Several of the men who sat about the table sprang to their feet, the door burst open, and an officer, followed by a squad of soldiers. rushed into the room. In an instant every one of the conspirators was covered by a rifle.

"You are my prisoners," said the offi-

"By what right?" exclaimed the president. He alone secmed cool; the rest stood as though paralyzed. Ignoring the president, the officer glanced at the oth-

"Line up against the wal!," he ordered. Silently they obeyed him—powerless to resist. The officer turned to his men and gave a sharp order. The soldiers raised their guns and aimed them at the defenseless breasts of the prisoners.

Again the president spoke:

"What do you mean to do?" cried. "To execute you at once," returned the officer, coldly. Then to the soldiers: "Take aim. Fi-"

"Stop!"

The cry rang out loud and clear in the deadly stillness of the room and the spy sprang forward from where he stood against the wall. "Stop!" he cried, but the spy continued to advance. His coldness, his impassiveness, had disappeared; his face was yellow with fear; stood on his forehead.

"No-no-you must not shoot me," you kill me it will be murder-murder-the officer's feet. The doomed men looked at the missomething that looked like triumph.

"An agent of the police." said the officer, doubtfully. "You have your cre- is no haphazard undertaking. The dentials?"

tearing a piece of paper from his pocket | novel, say, about Louis XI. of France and handing it to the officer, "it is there or Henry VIII. of England, or George -it is there. Ah, my God!"

This last exclamation was one of renewed terror, for the soldiers, dropping some particular incident. But in order their rifles, had sprung upon him, and to perfect the plot, make the characwere binding him hand and foot,

The men looked at him as though they could scarcely credit their senses; then one or two pegan to sob, and one man laughed. "And this spy?" he questioned.

A fierce murmur ran around the room; the men, with one accord, started toward the corner, where the man lay bound

"Kill him-kill him!" they shouted.

The president raised his hand. "Stop," cried he. "the man is mine, mine to punish as I see fit. Leave him to me. You will accompany our brother Vassoloff." indicating the pseudo officer, "to a place of refuge. From our friend's admission, we are no longer safe hcre."

"But-" "I have spoken," said the president, sternly. The conspirators turned and silently went out. As the man who had laughed passed the spy he kicked him in the face and laughed again. Then the president was alone with the spy. He stood looking at him for a moment, a cruel smile on his whitebearded face. Presently he took from his pocket a long fusc, placed one end in the powder keg, and wound the other about one of the tallow candles, an inch from the burning wick. Then he placed the candle in front of the spy's face, where he could almost touch it, and, turning, went to the door. At the threshold he paused. "Your fate will be a lesson to your fellow spics," he said—and was gone. The spy heard his steps as he went down the passage; he counted them till they died away in the awful silence of the night. Then he looked at the candle. How long would it take an inch of tallow to burn? The police would not come till nine. Would it last till then? He looked at the clock. Twenty minutes past eight. Would that inch of tallow last 40 minutes? If it should not, would being blown up be so painful?

He looked at the candle again; it seemed to melt away before his eager gaze. He tried to shriek, but could not the bruise on his facc, where the man had kicked him, hurt fearfully he became unconscious. . He dreamed of his mother, dead years . . . He thought that he was a child again and that she had taken him on her lap, and was telling him the old storics that he loved. It was summer, and he could hear the reapers singing. . . . He laughed with happi-

He opened his eyes. The darkness of the room frightened him, and he tried to call his mother. The gag was still in his mouth, and like a flash the whole dreadful, sickening truth came back, to him. The hands of the clock pointed to 20 minutes before nine, and the candle was more than half burned. He shook like a leaf; a dreadful nausea sickened him.

Again he slooked at the clock. Ten minutes of nine. The candle seemed to burn slower. Was there still hope? Would the police come on time-would they come on time? He strained his ears to hear their coming, but there was no sound. Good God, would they be late?

It was five minutes of nine. He tried to pray. He was lost. No! At last he could hear the soldiers approaching; but the clock was striking nine. A knock on the door, and the flame had touched the fuse. He watched the spark as it crept, like a snake, across the floor, nearer, nearer, nearer to the keg. He tried to scream. . . . The sound of a door being broken open. . . . The footsteps of men on the passage, outside. the door, but the spark had reached the keg. . . A flash-

A second later, when the soldiers entered, they saw a sight that frightened even them, used to fearful sights as they were. A dead man, bound and gagged. lay upon the floor. His face was green with terror, his hair snow white, and his eyes red, staring and protruding.

On the floor was the black mark where a fuse had burned, and in one corner was a powder kcg-empty!

Mr. Clark went to the telegraph office and put himself in communication with the manager of the house of Morgan, who went to the Bank of England in London. The bank sent word to the Plymouth branch manager, and thatgentleman came personally to the Royal hotel, and, with hat in hand, begged to be of service to Paymaster Clark in any way that gentleman would suggest.

The apparently placated paymaster, accompanied by his clerk, went with the bank officer to the bank. The drafts were duly passed over, and a large bundle of Bank of England notes placed before the paymaster.

"What are these?" asked Clark. "Those are Bank of England notes."

"Yes, I see they are notes, signed by Frederick May, that the bank will pay bearer, etc. Well, I do not know Mr. May, and of course I do not know you. This paper may be good, but I have no assurance of that. I'll trouble you for the gold."

Sea Level.

Sea level is a level only in the imagination. For instance, the water in the bay of Bengal is 300 feet higher than the surface of the Indian ocean, and along the Pacific coast of South America the sea is often 200 feet higher than its lowest surface. The differences result from the attractive powers of great mountain ranges.

Allowance Made by the Government Is Not Enough to Keep Them Up.

The threatened extinction of military bands-in the present form, at any rate -is to be deplored, if only for the reason European station during the period of that the big drum is the best rescruiting the civil war, relates the New York agent that the army possesses, say the Times. For a long time past Pall Mall has looked with disfavor on military bands, This has now culminated in the decision of the war office to issue a new set of rules under which they are to be main-"Well, I do not know the sub-treas- tained in future. These have occasioned consternation broadcast, for when they come into effect-somewhere about the end of July-it will be found quite impossible to carry on the bands in anything like their present state of efficiency. The principal reason for this is, first, because the numerical strength is to be cut down to a mere 21 in each instance, and, secondly, because the financial support hitherto accorded to a band by the commissioned ranks is to be withdrawn altogether. Accordingly, a regimental band will have to exist as best it may on its government subsidy of £160 per annum. When it is remembered that this works out at less than £4 a week, the futility of the proceeding needs no further laboring.

Although the authorized "establishment" of a military band has for many years past been 21, and it is for this number that instruments have been provided officially, it has been the practice in every regiment to add to this considerably. The cost of doing so has been borne by the officers, all above the rank and subaltern, contributing for the purpose one day's pay per month. It is this system that the authorities in Pall Mall are now going to knock on the head. Army bands in future are to be conducted in the "regulation" manner or not at all. The latter contingency is the sure and certain fate of those belonging to practically all the "crack" corps. Take the case of the Grenadiers or Coldstreams, for example. Each maintains-and requires them for the proper discharge of the calls made upon them-39 musicians in addition to the official 21. Without such aid it would be impossible to perform half the pieces in their programmes. Again, if they were not available there would be no one to take the places of men temporarily off duty. At present a proportion of these "extras" are always under training, and are drawn upon to fill up the constant vacancies due to discharges, eac.

Women who work, whether in the house, store, office or factory, very rarely have the ability to stand the strain. The case of Miss Frankie Orser, of Boston, Mass., is interesting to all women, and adds further proof that woman's great friend in need is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered misery for several years. My back ached and I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches. I would often wake from a restful sleep in such pain and misery that it would be hours before I could close my eyes again. I dreaded the long nights and weary days. I could do no work. I consulted different physicians hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicines did not cure me, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was highly recomended to me. I am glad that I did so, for I soon found that it was the medicine for my case. Very soon I was rid of every ache and pain and restored to perfect health. I feel splendid, have a fine appetite, and have gained in weight a lot."—MISS FRANKIE ORSER, 14 Warrenton St., Boston, Mass. 14 Warrenton St., Boston, Mass.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, sick and discouraged, and exhausted with each day's work. Some derangement of the feminine organs is reponsible for this exhaustion, following any kind of work or effort. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as it has thousands of other women.

The case of Mrs. Lennox, which follows, proves this.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - Last winter I broke down suddenly and had to seek the advice of a doctor. I felt sore all over, with a pounding in my head, and a dizziness which I had never experienced before. I had a miserable appetite, nothing tasted good, and gradually my health broke down completely. The doctor said I had female weakness, but, although I took his medicine faithfully, I found no relief.

'After two months I decided t a change would do for me, and as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was strongly recommended to me I decided to try it. Within three days I felt better, my appetite returned, and I could sleep. In another week I was able to sit up part of the day, and in ten days more I was well. My strength had returned, I gained fourteen pounds, and felt better and stronger than I had for years. I gratefully acknowledge its merits. Very sincerely yours,

MRS. BERT E. LENNOX, 120 East 4th St., Dixon, Ill."
